

Christian Moser

Columbia Business School

3022 Broadway

New York, NY 10027

January 13, 2017

Disclosure Statement

Returns to Education Through Access to Higher-Paying Firms: Evidence from U.S.
Matched Employer-Employee Data

by Niklas Engbom and Christian Moser

The author has received no financial support for the particular research conducted in this paper.

The current project is conducted under a confidentially agreement with the Center for Human Resource Research at the Ohio State University, which is responsible for collecting the administrative data used in this paper. The CHRR has provided access to the data at a per user cost, but has provided no financial support. The CHRR has the right to review and decline requests to transfer and make public results using the data, and has reviewed and approved for release the published paper.

The author discloses that he has no other relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

The current project has received an exemption from IRB approval from the Princeton University Institutional Review Board.

A handwritten signature in black ink, reading "Chris A. Moser", is positioned above a horizontal line.

Christian Moser, Columbia University