

Disclosure Statement
by Robert B. Wilson on 11 December 2018

Regarding the paper “How market design emerged from game theory” co-authored with Alvin Roth and submitted 9 December 2018 to the Journal of Economic Perspectives,

- I have not received any financial support for the research it describes,
- I have not received any financial support in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like,
- I have no paid or unpaid position as officer, director, or board member of any relevant organization,

All of the above is true also of my family to the best of my knowledge. The paper has not been reviewed by any other publication, and those individuals who viewed it before submission are named in the paper.