

Disclosure Statement for Lisa Barrow

20170599: Increasing Access to Selective High Schools through Place-based Affirmative Action: Unintended Consequences

The author declares that she has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

Financial support for this research was provided by the Smith-Richardson Foundation.

The data used in the paper are proprietary and belong to the Chicago Public Schools (CPS), and findings are subject to review. To date, the authors of this paper have worked closely with CPS staff to keep them informed of ongoing progress and findings. Access to the data are covered by a legal agreement between the University of Chicago Consortium on School Research and the Board of Education of the City of Chicago (the Board). The relevant language in that agreement is as follows:

“...the Board [should] receive a preview copy prior to publication of any and all such publications and an opportunity to comment within thirty (30) days of receipt; and the University agrees to consider all such comments.”

“The Board shall also have the right to inspect publications for inadvertent disclosures of individually identifiable information or Confidential Information.”

Finally, this study is covered under University of Chicago IRB approval 16-0937.

Disclosure Statement for Lauren Sartain

20170599: Increasing Access to Selective High Schools through Place-based Affirmative Action: Unintended Consequences

The author declares that she has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

Financial support for this research was provided by the Smith-Richardson Foundation.

The data used in the paper are proprietary and belong to the Chicago Public Schools (CPS), and findings are subject to review. To date, the authors of this paper have worked closely with CPS staff to keep them informed of ongoing progress and findings. Access to the data are covered by a legal agreement between the University of Chicago Consortium on School Research and the Board of Education of the City of Chicago (the Board). The relevant language in that agreement is as follows:

“...the Board [should] receive a preview copy prior to publication of any and all such publications and an opportunity to comment within thirty (30) days of receipt; and the University agrees to consider all such comments.”

“The Board shall also have the right to inspect publications for inadvertent disclosures of individually identifiable information or Confidential Information.”

Finally, this study is covered under University of Chicago IRB approval 16-0937.

Disclosure Statement for Marisa de la Torre

20170599: Increasing Access to Selective High Schools through Place-based Affirmative Action: Unintended Consequences

The author declares that she has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

Financial support for this research was provided by the Smith-Richardson Foundation.

The data used in the paper are proprietary and belong to the Chicago Public Schools (CPS), and findings are subject to review. To date, the authors of this paper have worked closely with CPS staff to keep them informed of ongoing progress and findings. Access to the data are covered by a legal agreement between the University of Chicago Consortium on School Research and the Board of Education of the City of Chicago (the Board). The relevant language in that agreement is as follows:

“...the Board [should] receive a preview copy prior to publication of any and all such publications and an opportunity to comment within thirty (30) days of receipt; and the University agrees to consider all such comments.”

“The Board shall also have the right to inspect publications for inadvertent disclosures of individually identifiable information or Confidential Information.”

Finally, this study is covered under University of Chicago IRB approval 16-0937.