Re: Disclosure statement

Dear Editors,

This statement is to disclose information regarding my affiliations and financial support while writing the paper “Homeownership, Labor Supply, and Neighborhood Quality,” co-authored with Naomi Hausman of the Hebrew University and Tamar Ramot-Nyska of the Bank of Israel.

I did not received any financial support for the production of this research.

Among the data sources used for this paper were confidential data from Israel’s National Insurance Institute (labor supply), Tax Authority (private housing transactions), and public housing authorities (identities of tenants and exact locations of units). The NII data, combined with the public housing authority data, were accessed from the NII’s research room. The NII reviewed results to ensure that no confidential information was disclosed. Aggregates were exported from the NII research room to enable merging with confidential housing transaction data at the Bank of Israel. Only statistical results were released from analyses done on the Bank of Israel server.

Sincerely,

Noam Zussman
