

Disclosure Statement for Brent Ambrose for the paper “Did the Paycheck Protection Program Help Small Businesses?”

Each author of a submitted article should identify each interested party from whom he or she has received significant financial support, summing to at least $10,000 in the past three years, in the form of consultant fees, retainers, grants and the like. The disclosure requirement also includes in-kind support, such as providing access to data. If the support in question comes with a non-disclosure obligation, that fact should be stated, along with as much information as the obligation permits. If there are no such sources of funds, that fact should be stated explicitly. An “interested” party is any individual, group, or organization that has a financial, ideological, or political stake related to the article.

- Neither I, nor any of my relatives, have received financial support from any interested party related to topics covered in this paper.

Each author should disclose any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of relevant non-profit organizations or profit-making entities. A “relevant” organization is one whose policy positions, goals, or financial interests relate to the article.

- Neither I, nor any of my relatives, have any position in any relevant organization.

Each author must disclose if another party had the right to review the paper prior to its circulation.

- No party had the right to review this paper prior to circulation.
