I run a consulting company, Goldfarb Analytics Corporation, that advises organizations on digital and A.I. strategy, including work on legal cases involving large technology companies. I have given lectures—sometimes paid—at several organizations including healthcare organizations such as Boehringer Ingelheim, Hospital for Sick Children, and AdventHealth.

I serve on the scientific advisory board of FutureFertility, an AI in healthcare company. I am Chief Data Scientist and Academic Director-Toronto at the Creative Destruction Lab, a non-profit organization that helps science-based startups to scale.

I also hold shares in many large technology and healthcare companies as part of a well-balanced investment portfolio, as well as several AI-focused startups.
